Mumbai, Aug 12, 2013: Reliance Life Insurance Company (RLIC), part of Reliance Capital Ltd, today welcomed new regulations announced by the Insurance Regulatory and Development Authority (IRDA) that allows banks to become licensed insurance brokers and sell products of multiple life insurance companies.

Mr. Anup Rau, CEO, Reliance Life Insurance Ltd said, "We welcome IRDA's new regulations, allowing banks to become licensed insurance brokers and to offer products of multiple life insurance companies to their customers.

We are happy that IRDA has taken an extremely progressive measure in the best interests of hundreds of millions of consumers across all strata of society.

These new regulations will lead to an open bancassurance architecture and will drive banks to align their interest with their customers by offering them a wider choice of products from a larger number of life companies, instead of the existing conflicted practice of pushing products from a single manufacturer“.

"We expect these new regulations to lead to much deeper penetration and enhanced distribution for the life insurance industry in general, thereby contributing to a greater sense of security for all Indians, and also serving important long-term economic objectives for the nation," said Mr. Rau.
